

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

An alternator comprises a brush holding assembly holding brushes within a holding portion and being provided with a cover capable of being opened to remove the brush; and a cap which is disposed on an open portion for removal and insertion of the brush, the open portion being formed at a position on the case facing the cover. The removal and insertion of the brush is performed through the open portion with the open portion opened.

TO THE PUBLIC